Trace Creek receives 2008 AGC of Kentucky, Build Kentucky Award

LEXINGTON, KY., February 8, 2008 – Trace Creek has received the 2008 AGC of Kentucky Build Kentucky Award of Excellence for the new Kings Daughters Medical Center – Medical Specialties facility in Grayson Kentucky.

The 24,000 square foot facility completed in May 2007 was a building collaboration between Kings Daughters Medical Center and Kentucky Christian University. KDMC utilizes the first floor of the new facility for primary care physician services along side a cardiac care office unit. KCU will utilize the second floor for the schools nursing program.

“The entire project was like a work of art which gradually developed before our eyes” said Dr. Keith Keeran, President of KCU. “Excellence is a word that is thrown around a lot today, but I can think no other word that better describes the performance of Trace Creek or the quality of their work”.
